

Commitment (To a new type of contract approach)

Our company has developed a flexible approach to the ever-changing needs and requirements of clients and we would relish the opportunity to take part in this new and exiting concept right from the beginning. Ideas developed within this project may be used to good effect on future contracts with other clients.

Also, we have recently started looking at the possibility of developing partnerships with suppliers ourselves and a partnering supply chain is an idea with potential. Bringing in sub-contractors and suppliers at an early stage would create a more buildable design and a more cost effective final product.

This Policy is to be reviewed no later then 31st December 2012.
